

The Divinity Within Us (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Divinity Within Us For some years I have been busy writing upon the eshly tablets of young hearts the message of the Great Teacher - too busy to write with pen and ink upon paper. That is my loved ernply, and I dare not neglect it for any other. However, I have been seizing the few odd moments for the preparation of these seven short chapters. The thoughts in this book have been helpful to me, and that is why I have writ ten them out for you. There is not. Much, if anything, new here. If you are an extensive reader, you have already found much of it bet ter expressed elsewhere. If you do find any thing that has not occurred in your former read ing, do not deal rashly with it; but be courteous toward it, even if you must finally reject it.
