

Life Lessons from Living with Luke: How my Autistic son is teaching me how to live

When Steve Hannam a.k.a. Danson Thunderbolt, became aware of how emotionally apart his Autistic son Luke had grown away from him in the past few years, he started writing a blog about his thoughts, feelings and fears for and about Luke. In the process of trying to maintain a relationship, Steve became aware of lessons his son was teaching him about how to live better. This book lays out those lessons and shows that although just because somebody with Special Needs may not be able to connect and communicate with you, it doesn't mean that they cannot teach you something new about How To Live.
