

India: New Dimensions of Industrial Growth (Industrial Development Review Series)

Each report in the Industrial Development Review Series provides information on industrial and economic performance and prospects of a developing country. The source of each report, UNIDO, is in the position of being able to gather information that is not available to any independent editorial source. The India report analyses the structure and performance of the manufacturing sector in terms of value added, output, investment, employment and international trade. It also examines performance, trends and prospects for 5-10 key branches of industry with good investment prospects and reviews industrial policies and strategies with special emphasis on foreign investment policies and opportunities, transnational cooperation policies and science and technology policies. Macroeconomic policy, economic structure, recent economic trends and prospects are discussed and appendices of investment information and economic data are provided.
